

Diversity Committee's Inaugural Event A Winter Holiday Celebration

Monday, December 4

Join us at the University Club on Monday, Dec. 4, for a wonderful evening of music with piano great, William Watson.

Your Club's new Diversity Committee has planned this recital as its first event, and is hoping for a large, festive, holiday turnout of members and guests.

Hailed by critics as one of today's top pianists, William Watson has received awards from New Age Voice (Top Five Best Acoustic

Club seeks new office space.

The Club's lease at 465 California Street is up early next year. We anticipate a significant and unaffordable rent increase, and are looking for approx. 300 square feet for a new office, virtually anywhere in the City.

Because of our limited budget, our best chance to maintain a physical office presence may be to sublet space in the existing office of a Club member, or even donated space with tax writeoff possibilities.

If you have any thoughts, questions, ideas on this important matter, please telephone the Club office at (415) 421-4700.

Back by popular demand Return to the USS Hornet Saturday, November 11

Our Club family outing to the USS Hornet was sold out last year, so we've scheduled a return visit.

At 10 a.m. on Saturday, November 11, we'll embark on a docent-led tour of the aircraft carrier, USS Hornet, a ship rich in history and now in Alameda as an exciting Bay Area museum.

The Hornet, the eighth U.S. military ship to bear the name, served as the recovery craft for the Apollo 11 and 12 landing missions as well as the base for the famous Doolittle raid of WWII. This tour will be a perfect opportunity for young and old alike to see first-hand one of the U.S. Navy's most highly-decorated ships and a National Historical Landmark.

Admission for this event is $8 for adults, $4 for children (payable at the Hornet Museum) plus $5 per adult (payable to the Harvard Club) to cover the cost of an exclusive docent tour (not available to the general public).

Luncheon Lecture Series Reshaping the Information Technology Industry

Wednesday, November 8

Join us on at the top of the BofA building on Wednesday, November 8th for a stimulating talk on the IT industry with one its acknowledged leaders, Jack Hidary of EarthWeb.

Mr. Hidary and his co-founders formed a bold vision to reshape the information technology (IT) industry by providing a unique offering of online career development resources to the world of IT professionals.

EarthWeb Inc. is the leading online provider of career development resources to the world's Information Technology professionals. Through its network of online services including dice.com, measureup.com and itknowledge.com, EarthWeb provides a comprehensive set of solutions to a broad range of IT professionals, from CTOs to programmers, IT recruiters and HR managers.

Under Mr. Hidary's leadership of EarthWeb, the company has accomplished an impressive record of achievements. It secured tthree rounds of funding, recruited a world-class management team, acquired over 10 IT- related companies, expanded services internationally and achieved record revenues.

Under Mr. Hidary's stewardship, EarthWeb has earned the prestigious Business Week Info Tech 100 award, and was named the third fastest growing IT Company in the Info Tech 100.

Mr. Hidary's Internet experience began while he studied at Columbia University. There he helped develop ColumbiaNet --- one of the first campus information services to use the Internet. Jack Hidary was then awarded a Stanley Fellowship in Clinical Neuroscience at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). There he conducted brain imaging research projects involving Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) and Positron Emission Tomography (PET). Later, he conceived and led ReliefNet, one of the first non-profit websites providing disaster relief sup-

Harvard in the Valley Brunch

Come join Bob Howe, CEO of Scient, in kicking off the first of many bi-monthly brunches!!! Scient is a leader in developing innovative eBusiness solutions for Fortune 500 companies and emerging start-ups. Mr. Howe, a Harvard Business School graduate, will be joining us to share his broad experience on the various challenges involved in starting and growing a company over the last two and a half years, as well as the keys to success.

The goal of these brunches is to provide a casual forum for recent Harvard graduates working in the technology sector — to get acquainted, share ideas, provide support, and generally just have fun.

To find out more and take part in this first brunch, you MUST RSVP to Anupam Mishra at amishra@nextset.com.

Thursday, Nov. 16, 7:30 pm
